Teen Advisory Council & Writing Club

By Emily Dillman

Voice: The Teen Advisory Council is one of the many new teen clubs recently created at the library. Conveniently named Voice, the club's purpose is to serve as a group for teens to voice their opinions as to what they would like to see happen at the library.

After just one meeting you can already see the effect that local teens are having on the library. Voice plans to spend a great deal of time volunteering and working hard to make the library a better place for teens to come and enjoy. The club is open to Midlothian teens who have a passion for libraries and volunteerism. So, if this interests you at all, come to the next meeting on July 27th at 6p.m. and see what they're all about. Don't be afraid to help out and voice your opinions!

Do you like to write stories? Have any artistic talents? Then the Teen Writing Club is the place for you!

Designed for those who love to express their creativity, this club creates a Literary Magazine (Fusion Inc.) that comes out quarterly. This club is also open for any teen join. Stop by the next meeting on August 3rd at 6:30p.m. and show off some of your talent!

Don't have time to join, but are still interested? Don't worry! You can submit your works to the Writing Club, and get published in the magazine!

More into anime and manga? We have a club for that too!

Come in and see what's new in the Teen Manga Group. For more information and details about when these clubs meet, see Ms. Carnes, reference librarian, or pick up a calendar of events today!

Author, Norm Cowie, hanging out with teens before and after the discussion of his book: Fang Face

Teen Vampire Author @ the Library

By Jason Jennings

Although it was a stormy evening, teens had no problem getting to the library during their summer break to spend some time with teen author, Norm Cowie. Why? Because this author is funny and wrote a really funny vampire book: Fang Face.

He really related to the teens there and answered lots of questions about being a writer. He even gave an interview with the YA Librarian after the program:

- Q: When did you realize your knack for writing?
 A: I learned I had a knack for writing back in school, passing ing notes in class. Another kid would usually open up my note, snort out a snot bubble and get caught laughing. I made sure I signed the note with someone else's signature, so that was first experience using a pen name.

- Q: What advice can you give to budding writers?
 A: The writing business is extremely competitive, but more new venues are popping up. The Internet itself has created opportunities for writers, especially with ebooks and blogging.

Good writing will always find a home.

That is a sample of the fun stuff that Norm Cowie shared. I learned that books have more purposes than just school assignments. They can also be fun!

I, and the other teens, really enjoyed the program!

AWESOME ANIME ART INSTRUCTION

BY JUSTINE WESSELHOFF

On Tuesday, June 29th the library had a teen anime art instruction program. About 16 people showed up, with the crowd ranging from beginners to people who have been drawing for years.

The instructor taught on how to draw different manga styles of eyes, noses, and mouths; and how to place them on the face. We then learned how to draw the bodies and clothes for our characters, and we could choose a bulky body or a slimmer one. My favorite part was when the instructor showed us his work! He has amazing talent. This program was very inspiring and interesting. So remember, practice your drawing everyday and stick with it. It's all worth the work.

Dancing Up A Storm At Irish Fest!

By Maeve McDermott

This year's Irish Fest was a great success. This fest is annually held on Memorial Day Weekend at Gaelic Park in Oak Forest. Due to rain, attendance may have been a little less than usual, but the fun never stopped.

This year's entertainment, food, and events were bigger and better than ever before. There were lots of carnival rides and games for kids to enjoy. Parents were provided with tents where they could watch many different kinds of demonstrations, eat, drink, dance, listen to music, or just relax. There were also plenty of shopping areas where you could buy anything from exquisite Irish clothing, to handmade jewelry, to donkeys!

Irish dancing performances were held throughout the entire weekend, but the competition got rained out. Sheep shearing demonstrations were even given.

There was also a playground where kids could just hang out for a while. Everyone that went had a great time.

If you've never been to Irish Fest, next year's definitely the time to start going. Don't worry about being Irish, everyone's welcome!

You don't want to miss out on all of next year's fun!

May 28 through May 31, 2010!

Teens Volunteer At St. Christopher's VBS

By Nicole Ames

Many Midlothian teens volunteered to be counselors at this year's Vacation Bible School or VBS. The theme for VBS was "miracles."

Throughout the week, children learned about parts of the Bible that were about miracles. Each day's activities, which included games, crafts, and snacks fitting the theme, were shaped around a miracle story.

The children came in, got their name tags, and sat down. The day started with the children learning a new song accompanied with hand motions. The Bible story would be read, followed by a reflection given by one of the leaders.

Games were held either inside or outside, depending on the type of game. All of the crafts were done in the cafeteria. At the end of each day the children got together and sang the new song that they'd learned that morning or day before. All of the children and counselors got t-

Teen Volunteers At St. Stephen's VBS

By Christina Bravo

This year's Vacation Bible School at St. Stephen's Lutheran Church was held June 14th—18th, and as usual was a hit. A record-breaking 107 children attended throughout the week.

The many teens who helped out played a huge role in the success of this year's VBS. As soon as the teens arrived, they immediately went to work helping the children. Teens worked hard while teaching children about the Bible, helping them with crafts, teaching them songs about God, and much, much more.

The teens who helped with the children were told how greatly appreciated their help was, and without them, them this year's VBS may not have been as successful. The teens had tons of fun with the kids, and look forward to doing it again next year!

TEEN SPOTLIGHT: INTERVIEW WITH JENNY BORGMAN

BY MS. CARNES, LIBRARIAN

Jenny Borgman, a recent graduate of Bremen High School, is a part-time Library Page and active member of Voice, the Midlothian Public Library's teen advisory council. Some of her passions include reading, volunteering and working with children.

Congratulations Jenny, on a job well done!

Q: How does it feel now that you've graduated from high school?

A: Fantastic! And, a bit scary.

Q: What are your future plans?

A: My plans are to attend South Suburban Community College and then proceed on to a 4-year college to study child psychology, because I love working with kids.

Q: How has the library impacted your life?

A: In a lot of positive ways. Coming to, as well as working at the library, started making me read. I've gotten to learn a little bit about just about everything. Plus, reading a good book is relaxing.

Q: What does being a part of Voice mean to you?

A: I love volunteering and helping out others, especially children. It helps me feel needed and that feels great.
